Words from Leadership

To the USJC community,

It has truly been an honor for us to take up the torch this year as Board Co-Chairs of this wonderful organization that holds such personal meaning to us both. The U.S.-Japan Council is a remarkable community of individuals and organizations committed to strengthening the U.S.-Japan relationship through impactful people-to-people connections and collaboration. We are proud of the connections we have been able to forge and the gatherings we have been able to facilitate this year to deepen understanding, develop leadership and move the ball forward on substantive issues of importance in the U.S.-Japan alliance. Our 2023 Annual Report highlights USJC's vibrancy and momentum.

We are energized by the strategic planning process we engaged in this year with the participation of a wide range of stakeholders. We are especially grateful for the input we received during breakout sessions at the 2023 Annual Conference in Washington, DC. The strategic plan provides an excellent framework to build on USJC's past and forge new paths with clearly defined priorities.

A robust and resilient U.S.-Japan alliance grows ever more important in the face of tensions and instability in many areas of our world, as well as other challenges that call for global solutions. We believe USJC is uniquely positioned to address critical issues and inspire change, through the strength of our networks and our ability to convene and collaborate with important stakeholders in the alliance.

We are grateful to Suzanne Basalla for her leadership as President and Chief Executive Officer of USJC. Suzanne was the perfect leader to steer our ship through the challenging waters of the global pandemic and the sad loss of our founder, Irene Hirano Inouye. We thank Suzanne and wish her all the best. We are excited to welcome Audrey Yamamoto, our new President and CEO. Alongside our dedicated Board of Directors, staff, members and friends, we look forward to taking new steps toward fulfilling our mission in 2024.

Sincerely,

Kathy Matsui & Susan Morita
Co-Chairs, USJC Board of Directors

Words from Leadership

Dear Friends,

I am gratified to see how the Council has excelled during 2023 in strengthening the U.S.-Japan relationship through unparalleled people-to-people connections, positioning our members at the forefront of leadership in order to address the most pressing issues in the bilateral relationship.

We are a convener, a network and a community. Our Annual Conference brought participants to our nation's capital to tackle key issues around security, sustainability and diversity. Kampai Chicago gathering connected several cohorts for peer learning and fellowship.

In Tokyo, Business Advisory Board meetings and the TOMODACHI NextGen Summit brought together dynamic communities at different stages in their professional journeys.

USJC also leverages our network to tackle the complex bilateral issues that require collaboration across sectors, generations, cultures and borders. Our second year of Amazon-funded Climate & Sustainability Initiative programming allowed us to dive deeper into specific areas, resulting in policy outcomes. Meanwhile, the Silicon Valley Japan Platform advanced collaboration amid advances in generative AI.

USJC cultivates a leadership pipeline to sustain a dedicated community to contribute to the U.S.-Japan relationship and the greater good. From the TOMODACHI programs and Watanabe Scholarships to the Emerging Leaders Program, we are committed to the next generation. Our signature Japanese American Leadership Delegation program resumed in Spring 2023, and in the fall we launched a new mid-career program, the Advanced Leadership Collective.

Thank you for the privilege of serving as the President & CEO of the Council. It is an honor to pass the baton to Audrey Yamamoto, who will surely lead the Council to great things in our organization's next chapter. As the Council continues to lean into its strengths, focusing on NextGen leadership, increased diversity, "borderless" engagement and Member-led collaboration, the future is very bright indeed.

Suzanne Basalla

President & CEO, U.S.-Japan Council

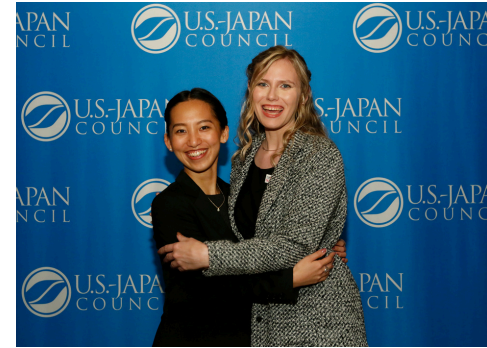

I am truly honored to have the privilege to build on the enduring legacy of Irene Hirano Inouye and exceptional leadership of Suzanne Basalla as USJC enters its next exciting chapter. My experience as a 2023 JALD delegate was transformative: not only did it introduce me to this incredible organization, it underscored to me the unique role Japanese Americans can play in strengthening U.S.-Japan relations. In addition to its community, what drew me to USJC is its tremendous potential to develop and connect globally-minded leaders for a stronger bilateral partnership. I congratulate our USJC community on all that was accomplished in 2023 and look forward to what we can do together in 2024 and beyond.

Audrey Yamamoto

Incoming President & CEO, U.S.-Japan Council

Next Generation Leadership Watanabe Scholarship

The Toshizo Watanabe Study Abroad Scholarship Program provides financial assistance to undergraduate and graduate students to study for a semester or year in the United States or Japan. A generous endowment gift of $10 million from Mr. Toshizo (“Tom”) Watanabe to the U.S.-Japan Council makes it possible to award scholarships to students for those with leadership potential and for whom study abroad would not be possible without financial support.

Learn more about the Watanabe Scholarship

“Being a Watanabe Scholar has been a great honor, and I’m glad I was selected to receive this scholarship. Not only did it provide financial support but it also allowed me to connect with other Watanabe Scholars who see the importance of cultural exchange, and I even had the pleasure of reconnecting with some scholars while being in Japan. But overall, studying abroad has been a life-changing experience for me that I will always remember.”

Next Generation Leadership Japanese American Storytelling Program

The Japanese American Storytelling Program (JASP) is an educational program, where USJC members collaborate with university educators in Japan to teach Japanese students about Japanese American history through storytelling. JASP aims to nurture students towards an inclusive global mindset.

“This was the first time I heard about the Japanese incarceration camps. It was interesting to me because I had never thought about how Japanese Americans who were outside of Japan during the war were treated. I realized that knowing the historical backgrounds of people and countries is important for smooth and respectful communication in a society with diverse nationalities and genders.”

-Student feedback after JASP presentation

“I felt that it is important to eliminate the assumption that Japanese people look the same and speak the same language. I hope that the number of different types of Japanese people will increase in the future and that Japanese people themselves will be able to imagine a more diverse Japan.”

-Student feedback after JASP presentation

In 2023, USJC Associate Tyler Pugeda shared a JASP presentation in ASL (American Sign Language) to Deaf university students. The presentation included live interpretation into JSL (Japanese Sign Language).

Planned Giving

The U.S.-Japan Council launched the Irene Hirano and Daniel K. Inouye Legacy Society in 2023 as part of its new Planned Giving program to honor the legacy of the visionary co-founders of the Council. The program will also help sustain the future of the Council by providing a solid financial foundation. To learn more about the Legacy Society, visit our website.

Major gifts are catalysts. Unlike planned gifts that shape our future, major gifts provide immediate support that enables USJC to address current needs.

“Both [Ken Inouye and I] are so touched. This Planned Giving Legacy Society is so personal to me, really, because it ensures the future of this organization which is the life’s blood and work all summed up in my mom and the Senator...I’m really tickled by the idea that there are TOMODACHI participants today that could be future USJC board members... By giving in this way, in this meaningful way, you’re ensuring that this is a possibility for these young people whom we may not have even met yet.”

-Jennifer Hirano

Daughter of founding president Irene Hirano Inouye

“I hope my gift will secure a much stronger future for the USJC and TOMODACHI program.”
